CONTROLLER NOT TO SIGN ROAD BONDS

Announces Determination to Oppose Action of County Commissioners---Favors Direct Tax For Road Improvement

County Controller Thomas J. Underwood, when asked what he was going to do about the road bonds that were sold without his sanction of his advertising for bids, said that when the bonds reach him for his signature he would refuse to sign them.

He insists that the commisioners are wrong in their action. He again said that the commissioners should outline some definite plan for road improvement and that they should not mortgage the future to a greater extent than necessary.

The controller favors a direct tax for road improvement money. He does not consider that a good sale was affected, but takes the view that a better price might have been secured. He states that since the bonds have been sold that he has had a number of inquiries about them.

He also made the suggestion that if the commissioners would make some effort to collect the delinquent taxes, there would be money available for road improvement.

A statement given out shows a total of $132,876.47 in delinquent taxes. This includes $14,032.61 of tax liens of record, but uncollected. On June 8, 1914 there was due on 1910 taxes, $15,468.43; on 1911 taxes $23,632.52; on 1912 taxes, $30,319.51, and on 1913 taxes, $49,423.40.

FEELING RUNS HIGH IN THE THOMAS CASE

Demonstration Follows Move of Young Man's Attorney

STATE CLOSES CASE

All Evidence in From One Side---Defense Outlines It's Plans

Interest in the trial of Walter Thomas, the farm hand who is on trial in the Waynesburg court for the murder of Mrs. Josephine Price, September 2, at her home near Rices Landing, was keen Wednesday afternoon and many crowded into the court room expecting the defendant to be placed on the witness stand in his own defense. The tipstaff threatened to clear the room in the afternoon following a demonstration.

The defendant's counsel, A. E. Silveus made a reply to an objection by one of the counsel at the commonwealth's table and the remark brought forth a laugh and many cheers applause showed the feeling which prevailed in favor of the defendant.

The state completed it's side of the case at 10:28 Wednesday morning, with the close of the cross-examination of Bertha Fox, the 11-year-old granddaughter of Mrs. Price.

In outlining the defense Attorney T. H. Wilkinson stated that it expected to show that some one other than Walter Thomas may have committed the crime. He said that the defense would show the bad feeling that existed between Walter Price son of the murdered woman and his parents as well as the good character of the defendant in the neighborhood of Rices Landing.

Mrs. Jennie Black one of the principal witnesses to testify for the defense Wednesday, testified that while she was standing in front of the Price home with other persons during the forenoon and soon after the tragedy was discovered she heard footsteps in the house, but no one was seen to come out, neither was it known that any other living person was about the premises. Evidence was also produced to show that there was ill-feeling between Oliver Price and his son Walter.

Newton Burnett of Carmichaels, who was a member of the Coroner's jury, testified that Oliver Price stated before the jury that on the night of the murder there was $35 worth of old coins and old gold in the house and $5 in other money, which had been given Mrs. Price for spending money, when he left for Pittsburg on Monday evening. Mr. Price told the Coroner's jury that Walter Thomas knew where the old coins and the money were kept and that nothing was taken from the house.

Storm Does Some Damage

Wednesday's Display of Power of Elements Shown in This Community

Damage was done throughout the community Wednesday evening by storm. Wind an drain combined to make things disagreeable, while the lightning, playing fitfully, added to the general trouble. In Belle Vernon the cupola of the Methodist Episcopal church was struck by lightning, and the frame work damaged to some extent. At the Vesta No. 5 mine at Allenport some of the electrical appliances were damaged by lightning In Charleroi, Monessen and Monongahela the windstorm and rainstorm wrecked only nominal damage.

JUPITER PLUVIUS SCORES

Wednesday Ball Game at Monessen Stopped by Downpour

DOPE HANDED DOWN

Charleroi was scheduled to play Monessen Page in the valley league, Wednesday evening at Monessen, but owing to the storm which came up just before time to start the game, it was postponed till a later date.

The Charleroi boys have been practicing and are in good condition. They are sorry that they could not meet Monessen Wednesday evening as they are confident of an easy victory. The Page team are a good husky bunch of fellows, but the local boys feel that they are stronger.

The local team will play the Roscoe club at Roscoe Saturday afternoon. This week there will be no game on the local grounds, but next week there will probably be two games played here.

Dunlevy will play their first league game with Monessen Saturday afternoon at Monessen. They have been playing some good teams this season and are said to have a strong team, although they are considered as unknown quantity in the league.

Belle Vernon Y. M. C. A. club will not play any games in the valley league until next week. They have a game scheduled outside of the league for this Saturday. This team was admitted Monday. They have been making a good showing so far this season.

The six teams that constitute the valley league are considered to be the pick of the valley. They will probably show some pretty classy baseball before the season closes. The

THE PENNSYLVANIA CONTEST

Important elections will be held in nine leading states this year and in all states members of congress will be chosen. The results will go far to indicate the battle lines and chances of the next presidential campaign, if they do not actually determine them. Of all Pennsylvania will attract greatest national attention. For the first time in more than fifty years this state did not give its electoral vote to the Republican candidate at the last presidential election. A fit of hysteria, which could be but temporary at best, divided the party. It did not give the electorial vote to the Democratic candidate, as was the case in so many other states, but it did present to the Democratic party many congressmen. The recent enrollment and vote at the primaries show conclusively that the spasm has abated—that a great proportion of those Republicans who voted outside the party two years ago have returned to vote with the party this year.

These facts clearly demonstrate that the contest in Pennsylvania this year is between the Republican party and the Democratic party. Either the Republican state candidates will be elected or the Democratic candidates will be. It will be a Republican victory or a Democratic victory. The only part the Bull Moosers can play in the contest is to help the Democrats to a possible triumph. If enough votes can be diverted from the Republican party a Democratic triumph will be the result and this fact with all that it portends must be fully realized by all who are opposed to the destructive and depressing policies that have been, and are being embodied in Democratic legislation.

This legislation in the tariff act alone has struck a paralyzing blow to Pennsylvania and to the country at large. It has failed in all its promised benefits. It has increased by a million dollars a day the importations of foreign-made goods to the exclusion of those of American manufacture. It has greatly reduced the volume of exports. Money is going abroad instead of coming here. A large porportion of our industrial establishments have been put on part time and some on no time at all. The list of the unemployed has lengthened. It bas stagnated business, and further menacing legislation is keeping the country in a state of suspense and apprehension.

The dangers let loose upon the country by a Democratic administration and a Democratic congress, the damaging character of the legislation and the damaging character of what is still proposed, are enough to unite the people in support of the Republican party and its policies. They have already brought back within the lines a great porportion of those who bolted the party two years ago, and who thereby aided the Democratic party power. The necessity for a common defense against destructive and ignorant legislation and the restoration of the Republican party and its policies, under which the state and the nation prospered and progressed should complete the union.

Pennsylvania is looked to lead the way; to advance in unbroken front. Can it be doubted where this state will stand in an issue between the Republican and the Democratic parties; in a battle for American policies and self-preservation.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

There are many stories of the caustic wit of Thomas B.Reed, the famous speaker of the house of representatives. One of his most amusing thrusts was delivered at William S. Holman, a member of Congress from Indiana. It was perhaps the keenest witticism ever uttered in debate on the floor of the house.

Holman was a constant objector to the expenditure of money by congress and had honestly earned the title of "Watchdog of the Treasury." One day when the committee was perfunctorily putting through a number of bills for the erection of government buildings in various cities, Holman was constantly on his feet, objecting to their consideration. But when Indiana was reached and the committee began to propose appropriations for buildings in the towns of that state, Holman's objections came with much less spirit and finally ceased altogether. When at length a bill was offered that carried a generous appropriation for a building in Holman's own town, he rose and expressed hearty approval. Hardly had he taken his seat when Mr. Reed was on his feet. "Mr. Speaker!" he shouted; and then, in gently sentimental tones he recited Byron's familiar lines:

'Tis sweet to hear the watchdog's
honest bark
Bay deep mouthed welcome as we draw near home!

And the "great objector" forget to object any more that day!

A young married couple who recently had a dispute concerning the biscuit served for breakfast. The husband offered certain tart observations touching his wife's culinary ability, referring of course to the "kind that mother used to make." This sally moved the wife to action, with the result that the next morning she set before the complaining husband a plate of hot biscuits alleged to be the real thing.

"Now you-ve hit it!" exclaimed he after disposing of one biscuit. "These biscuits are exactly the sort my mother used to make. How did you happen to hit upon the recipe?"

"I am happy to inform you," said his wife, with glittering eyes," that I employed oleo for butter, used cold-storage eggs, dropped a bit of alum in the flour and adulterated the milk. Remember, sweetheart, that mother lived before the enactment of the pure food law."

Wednesday's class consisted of 21 aplicants, three men and 18 women, seven of the number being without experience as teachers.

OFFERS $25 REWARD FOR BODY OF HIS SON

Although divers, men with grappling hooks and seines worked all Tuesday night and all day Wednesday they failed to recover the body of Frederick Christina, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Christina, who was drowned in the Monongahela river opposite the River Coal company docks at Monongahela Tuesday afternoon.

The father of the boy has offered a reward of $25 to anyone finding the body. The boy was seen to dive from a boat into the river by his companions, but he never came to the surface. The boat from which he dived was hemmed in by coal barges, but these have all been removed and no trace of him was found.

SENT TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Vast Amounts of British Capital Invested in Colonies and in North America.

Take first the capital supplied to new countries for the development of their railways, their oil fields, their rubber plantations, their agriculture. We all remember the political catchword of "capital going abroad," and the campaign against British investments, organized and controlled by the unionist party, remarks the London Chronicle. The unionist leaders and the unionist ex-chancellor of the exchequer solemnly told the country that money was safer abroad than at home, and there is no doubt that the investing classes, which are largely unionist, took their word for it and did invest abroad. Believing that Diaz, Madero or Huerta was a safer guide than Campbell-Bannerman, Asquith or Lloyd-George, they neglected everything English and subscribed for anything foreign—a policy that they may bitterly repent today.

The result of this attitude in England was great activity in the new undeveloped countries. In the capital market, when the tap is working easily, some one is sure to be there with a bucket, and foreign borrowers did take money from London in bucketfuls. Exactly how much has been subscribed in the last few years no one can say, but the Economist figures, which are the most conservative of all the published statistics, place the amount of new capital publicly raised in England during the last five years at £1,044,609,000—one thousand millions in five years in advertised prospectuses alone! Of this sum by far the greater part has gone to British colonies and South America: Canada alone taking nearly £200,000,000 and Argentina nearly £100,000,000.

LONDON TO HONOR FRANKLIN

Movement to Set Up Statue of Philosopher in Chapel Where He Worked as Printer.

Few London people would connect romance with the name of Benjamin Franklin, but there is a chance that he may be commemorated in the most romantic of England's few medieval churches, St. Bartholomew's, Smithfield.

Some one has discovered from the parish rate books that he once worked at the case in an office housed in his day in the Lady Chapel of the church.

Franklin records that he was employed on setting up the second edition of Woolaston's "Religion of Nature" and in that book there is a quaint little engraving showing the top floor of the factory with the compositors' racks.

The posts of these racks were still there in 1885 before the Lady Chapel was cleared of its workaday fittings and prepared for worship again.

In the wall over the Lady Chapel altar (and in Franklin's day actually in the printing room) are five tall niches, probably filled with figures of saints before the Reformation. It is now proposed to commemorate Franklin by placing one or more "female saints" in these niches.

Poor, But Proud.

A lady who is a district visitor became much interested in a very poor but apparently respectable Irish family named Curran living on the top floor of a great building in a slum district of her parish.

Every time she visited the Currans she was annoyed by the staring and the whispering of the other women living in the building. One day she said to Mrs. Curran:

"Your neighbors seem very curious to know who and what I am and the nature of my business with you."

"They do," acquiesced Mrs. Curran.

"Do they ask you about it?"

"Indade they do, ma'am."

"And do you tell them?"

"Faith, thin, Oi do not."

"What do you tell them?"

"Oi just tell thim," was the calm reply, "that ye are me dressmaker, an' let it go at that."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Washington's Return Home.

On December 4, 1783, Washington bade farewell to his officers in New York and rowed across the Hudson to New Jersey, thence proceeding to Philadelphia. There he handed to the proper officers a statement of the money he had spent out of his own pocket after he took command of the army more than eight years before in Cambridge. The amount was $64,315. For his services during that time he refused any pay. When he reached Annapolis, where congress was sitting, he resigned as commander in chief of the army, and proceeded to Mt. Vernon, where he had been but once during the eight years and a half.

Lawyers' Favorite Indoor Sport.

"As to the question of good faith that has been raised here, that has no bearing whatever," declared one of the lawyers for the "taxpayers" who are trying to enjoin the Hyde case prosecution. And possibly he spoke correctly. More and more the element of "good faith" is ceasing to be a factor. Many attorneys regard the administration of law as an indoor sport—a duel of wits between Artemas Quibble and Erasmus K. Snitch.—Kansas City Star.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains; was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JOSIE HAM, R. BAMBOO AS PAPER MATERIAL

Experiments Being Made With the Hope That This Material May Be Found Available.

Inventors are seeking a substitute for the wood pulp in the manufacture of paper. So far various methods have been tried to produce the coarser grades of paper from corn husks, grass, reeds and other forms of vegetable life, but print paper has not yet been successfully produced from anything except wood pulp.

In the far east they are making experiments with bamboo as a possible basis for the making of pulp. Some capitalists of the Orient have gone so far as to establish factories in Siam, Burma and India, but the undertaking has not yet been altogether successful. The great factor against the success of the enterprise in India seems to be the question of satisfactory and cheap transportation.

Pulp so far manufactured has had the fault of being too dark in color to bring a satisfactory price. Bamboos most of the time so far have cost $3.11 gold a ton. Little of the product so far has been sold, but samples submitted in London indicate that the company may receive as high as $38.27 gold a ton. The maximum output of the factory so far has not exceeded half of the original expectation of 18 tons of pulp a day, but it is now expected that with a small addition to the plant a normal output of 12 tons can be maintained and that this rate may be exceeded in time, with comparatively little additional expense.

The critical feature of the entire enterprise seems to be in the matter of bleaching the pulp. Experts claim for bamboo pulp certain advantages, among which is the fact that bamboo pulp can be had in parts of the world where other pulp materials are not to be had; it produces a fine pulp which felts readily and produces a thick opaque paper of greater thickness than usual for its weight, making it especially suitable for particular varieties of paper; the fine flexible fiber is easily digested by the ordinary bisulphide process and the bamboo can readily be handled mechanically and chemically.

Engineers Laugh at Obstacles.

Like the mining engineer, the building engineer now finds practically no problem in his field which he can not solve, and the question of excavating for foundations for high buildings is little more than a routine matter. Depth is no great hindrance, as has been demonstrated in New York. For the greatest office structure in the world, on the site of the Equitable building, destroyed by fire, the engineers dug and blasted far below the street, and at a depth of eighty feet found a rock bed around the entire site for the more important base of the foundation. It is on this bedrock that the mighty cofferdam, which will form the true middle of a foundation covering over 49,000 square feet, will be built. The cofferdam itself, when complete, will be a solid concrete wall, six feet broad and eighty feet deep, strengthened or reinforced by heavy steel rods.

Dinner Evidently Was a Success.

The Ladies' Aid of Buffalo gave a big chicken pie dinner at the sale in Shiell's hall last Saturday. There was a large attendance and the whole affair was a success. The ladies know that advertising pays, and they patronized the pages of the Review liberally with their announcements. The women that made the chicken pies were on the job with both feet and their hats on and the fried cake and bean artists produced an article that tasted moreish. There was a big bunch of youngsters present and when they got action on the chicken pie and other "fixens" the food disappeared like water down a badger hole. The financial end of the dinner produced the sum of $165.50 in cash. There is no disputing the fact that when the Ladies' Aid of Buffalo squares away to do things they do them.—Buffalo (Mont.) Review.

High-Speed Shorthand Machine.

A new shorthand machine, called the stenotype, has made its appearance at a competition in New York. It takes down 592 words a minute and weighs eight pounds. The working of it is based on phonetic spelling. Several letters can be printed by striking one key, while it is possible to strike two keys with one finger. The 23 keys represent seven consonants and every combination of sounds used in speech, together with about 150 standard abbreviations—the sole code that the operator must master. The machine is not being sold to the general public, the sale being restricted to students of business schools qualified as competent operators, in order to keep the device from becoming a drug on the market.

Cynics in Politics.

A New York reformer said at a dinner:

"We have no use for the cynic—no use for the man who, having been asked to define the word 'reformer,' said:

"'Reformer? Oh, he's a chap who failed to get an office out of either party.'"

Eve Not a Suffragist.

"A woman ought to stay at home attending to the dinner," said the man who resents present tendencies.

"No," replied Mr. Meekton, "that's where the human race made its first great mistake. If Eve had been out lecturing instead of passing round the fruit, we'd have been spared an immense amount of trouble."—Exchange.

HOW SHE RETAINED YOUTH

Great Actress Had Set of Rules Which Seem Contrary to General Belief.

Modjeska, the famous Polish actress, who charmed our mothers and fathers, retained her youthful looks and spirit until middle life.

When she was about fifty years old some one asked her the secret of keeping young.

"I take a hot bath every night," said the actress, "and a long, sound sleep. Then I eat a light breakfast, a hearty dinner at two, tea and bread at five and supper after the performance. I am a great believer in soap and water and plenty of sleep.

"After all, it is none of these outside aids that keeps one young. Keeping young inside is what counts."

Of course some persons would argue that a cold bath every morning and no supper in the middle of the night would lead to health and youthful looks. But Modjeska's advice goes to prove that every woman must work out a course of life that agrees with her and then stick to it. Her occupation and tastes and constitution must all be taken into account. Then her rule must be formulated, tried, corrected and lived up to.

Youth seemed to be hereditary with Modjeska. It is said that when her old mother—a simple mountaineer in Poland—was seventy-five her children took her a set of woolen underwear. The old lady wore the garments from morning till night. At night she cried, and asked to be allowed to take them off.

"But they are good for you," said the children.

"But," said the old woman, "if I wear those woolly things now, what shall I wear when I am old?"

Doctor Tells This.

Dr. Blevins sat quietly, listening to the yarns of a party seated at the fireside of the hospitable host M., occasionally sniffing the air, and impatiently awaiting his turn. At length, the stock of yarns of his voluble companions seemed to have become exhausted.

"Away back in an autumn of the early seventies," began the doctor, "the wild pigeons came in great numbers after the mast. I was riding along a country road, one late afternoon, when I came to a pigeon roost. There were so many of these birds that their weight had bent the tree in which they were roosting to the ground, I thought I would stop and get a few of the birds. I hitched my horse to the branches of the treetop but when I attempted to catch the birds they all flew away, letting the tree spring back into an upright position, and to my discomfiture, carrying my horse up, too. There he hung by the bridle in the treetop. I was puzzled. Presently an idea occurred to me. The pigeons had lighted on a tree that stood on the next hillside. I ran around to the far side of the tree and 'shooed' the birds. They flew back to the first tree, where my horse hung, and lighting on it again, bent it to the ground as before. I ran back loosened the bridle, and got my horse.

"Since that experience, I tell you I am always careful as to where I hitch my horse."

Ruled Consumption Infectious.

A novel case recently decided in Ireland was Gwynne vs. Clarke in the Monaghan county court, where the defendant as executor of one Clarke was sued for damages because Clarke had obtained lodgings from the plaintiff under the false representation that he was not suffering from an infectious disease. Plaintiff asked Clarke at the time he applied if he didn't have consumption and the latter was admitted on his assurance that he had congestion of the lungs. He died later of consumption. The testimony at the trial showed that the plaintiff was unable to rent his lodgings for a long time because of Clarke's occupancy, but the defendant argued that consumption is not an infectious disease. The court held that what little authority existed on the point was entirely in plaintiff's favor and ruled that since Clarke falsely represented that he didn't have consumption he was liable to pay damages.

Matching Shirts.

The laundryman's bookkeeper inquired innocently why she was required to charge the gentleman at No 62 a higher price for washing his shirts and collars than any other customer.

"Because he belongs to the small but troublesome group of gentlemen who insist that their shirts, collars and white ties shall be exactly the same shade of white and send a brand new tie along as a sample to wash by," said the proprietor.

"It is very difficult to get several pieces of linen to turn out the same shade in the wash, partly because they are not all the same quality of linen. A garment that is part cotton is apt to wash yellow, a coarse linen absorbs more blue than a fine linen. I agree with No. 63 that nothing looks worse than a collar, tie and shirt of different degrees of whiteness. But since he insists upon having them match he must pay for the experimenting required to make them match."—New York Times.

The Upper Crust.

Mrs. French Vanderbilt, at a luncheon at Harbourview, her Newport villa, said of the nouveaux riches of Gotham:

"These people form, undoubtedly, a very splendid and ornate society—but it is a social upper crust based exclusively, as it were, on the financial dough beneath."

TEMPERATURE THIS YEAR TWICE GREATER THAN IT WAS LAST

Wednesday was more than twice as hot a day as the same date of last year, according to R. J. Lysle. Wednesday's temperature of this year was as high as 94. A year ago on June 10, the theremometer's best was 46 degrees. Hot weather records have been broken this week in Western Pennsylvania. Wednesday's rainstorm failed to have the desired effect of breaking the heat wave.

CLOTHES LINE FIGURES IN CASE BEFORE BURGESS DUNLAP

Burgess Dunlap of Monessen was called on Wednesday morning to settle a dispute between two women over a clothes line. Mrs. Parker made information against Mrs. Shurry on account of some trouble that they had over a clothes line post in the back yard of their premises. Things had not been going altogether smooth for some time. Judge Dunlap after listening to the affair the greater part of the morning decided that it was about an even break and settled by dividing the costs, assessing $1.00 to each of the parties. They promised to go home and live peacably.

HOT GAMES SCHEDULED BY PIRATES

The race in the National League is developing into one of the prettiest that the big circuit has enjoyed for several season, New York, Cincinnati, Pittsburg and Chicago being all in a bunch in the order named. Cincinnati is but a half game behind the Giants and Pittsburg but three games in the rear, while the Chicago team is within two games of the Pirates. A week's time would suffice to throw any one of these clubs into the leadership as against the New Yorkers and the chances are that there will be a constant shifting of position between these four clubs for some time to come.

With the Pirates regaining their batting eye, it may be expected that they will give a creditable account of themselves on the present Eastern trip and if they can but hold their present standing until they again get back on their own grounds, they will be in fine position to work their way again to the top, while the Giants are making their second swing around the Western end of the circle.

The Pirates do not return to their home grounds at Forbes Field until June 24, and thenafter four games with the St. Louis Cardinals, they hook up with the fast coming Chicagos, who are now pressing the Corsairs hotly for their position. As the Chicagoans play in Pittsburg July 3 and the two holiday games, morning and afternoon, of July 4 it insures two brilliant baseball contests at Forbes Field for Independence Day between rivals of old standing and who are again both fighting for another pennant. That the interest in the Pirates fight for the 1914 flag is usually strong hereabouts, was born out by the fact that the crowds at the Decoration Day games were among the largest holiday crowds ever held by Forbes Field and with Chicago as opponents on July 4, even that high-water mark in the way of holiday attendance, should be beaten.

NAME MAY BE ALRIGHT BUT NOT THE MAN

Constable Riley Guseman, of South Brownsville realizes that you can not determine what is in the package by the lable it bears. He was a very much surprised man the other day, when John Honesty, colored, wanted for chicken stealing failed to make his appearance after Guseman had allowed him to go for his coat. Honesty was ordered to pay the costs in court for chicken stealing when he was given a hearing at Uniontown last week and agreed to pay Saturday. Saturday came and went and Honesty failed to appear. So Detective John Smith sent Guseman after him. Honesty asked to get his coat which was in a commissary car. Guseman waited for some time but his man didn't show up. He investigated and found that Honesty had left the car by the other door.
